Exploration Seminar to India: Transforming Rural India Through Technology and Business Leadership

August 11 through August 31, 2008

While urban India was turning itself into a global technology power, her vast rural areas long remained as they were for centuries. India is now improving life and business in the villages and farms by encouraging entrepreneurship and making technology available to them. This is an India that is not on the tourist routes.

Seeing the big changes:

Waste turned into energy.
Living tsunami barriers.
Wireless commerce.

Enjoying the people:

Ride in a local log catamaran.
Local beach volleyball tournament
Folk songs and dances.
Stay with a host Indian family.

Making a Difference:

After our visit in the country we will then meet with Indian students, faculty and government officials and develop a joint plan to accelerate progress and continue our collaboration.

Program leaders:
John Castle (UW) & Sudeep Jain (Indian Admin. Service)
